PINSA

Pinsa, or in fact pinsa romana, is the older and less caloric cousin of pizza. Thanks to its complex process of making pinsa dough, it is easy to digest and does not give the feeling of overeating. Pinsa romana is not round, but oval. It can be eaten with various toppings, both salty and sweet.

Pinsa was already prepared in Ancient Rome. This type of flatbread baked from a mixture of flours of different grains was practically forgotten. Thanks to the ingenuity of Roman bakers, pinsa has been making a stunning career for the past 10 years.
